SNOWPORT

ABOUT SNOWPORT

Every winter, Boston's Seaport neighborhood gets shaken up in a magical snow globe and transforms into Snowport, a fantastical winter wonderland of good times: gifts, games, art, food, and special events. This is the place where so many of those indelible holiday-time memories are made!

THE HOLIDAY MARKET AT SNOWPORT CO-PRODUCED BY THE MAKERS SHOW

Back in its junior year, The Holiday Market at Snowport is a European-style, open-air holiday market showcasing 120+ small businesses, including local craftsmen, artisans, and entrepreneurs selling unique gifts and wares. Did you know? Two-thirds of the vendors at the market are from Boston and the New England area. Shop local and shop happy!

We are thrilled that The Holiday Market provides the neighborhood a platform for so many small businesses, many of which are female and minority-owned. We are inspired by the stories of this incredible group of makers and are particularly grateful to our partners: The Makers Show, Constant Contact, Xfinity, and Boston Uncornered.

Be sure to bring an appetite! The market features a robust food hall with everything from Blue Fin's seafood chowders to Cheese Louise's gourmet grilled cheese to The Frenchman's Crepes to Zaz Restaurant's coconut shrimp and much, much more. See page #19 for a map of all the offerings.

The Holiday Market joins Snowport in creating the ultimate holiday destination, complete with outdoor iceless curling, a Betty the Yeti Winter Wonderland, large-scale winter games, The Tree Market at Snowport, and Light Up Seaport.

Not to be missed, as well: The Holiday Market at Snowport's dramatic canopy of 20,000+ twinkling lights, a Mistletoe Arch, and a Winter Wish Wall (a 25-foot interactive chalkboard where guests can share their holiday wishes).

BOOTH 46

“I’ve always admired entrepreneurs, but I did not have a clue how I could be one until I found Asia’s freshwater pearl lakes,” says Kevin, founder of K2 Pearls. Inspired by the pearl lakes, he lived for four years in Indonesia and China, where he searched for pearls since 2008. Kevin understands the places pearls originate, how they grow, and the people who bring them to life. He understands how to take a gem often perceived as a an old fashioned accessory and make it desirable to every generation.

Pearls gave Kevin the unique opportunity to live in Indonesia, to write a book, to meet his wife, and to be truly passionate about what he does for a living.

K2 Pearl collections range from a classic, timeless pieces in gold and silver to unexpected designs mixed with materials like rope and suede. ($45 - $200+).

Swarna’s small business story starts, like many others, out of necessity. “As a first-time mother, I was overwhelmed with learning new things every day, from dressing the baby to learning safety about every product that touched my newborn. Among the beautiful gifts that poured in, organic layettes were my favorites,” she recalls. “While I loved the idea of using organic cotton and safe dyes, I wanted something more than the earthy colors and boring designs that most organic brands carried.”

In 2020, Swarna left her career in corporate finance to create Little Moy. In 2021, the brand officially debuted alongside Swarna’s second child — a harmonious introduction to the world for these “twins.” The community warmly welcomed her product line made with love for the babies and the planet.

Little Moy’s fabrics are globally certified by GOTS and are known for their structural integrity and color retention, and all Little Moy products are mama-tested and newborn-approved. Items include rompers, leggings, sleepers, crochet toys and accessories ($24 - $34).

“I have been an artist all my life,” says Kinnari, the designer behind Kinnari Sanghavi Studio. “I have worked in various disciplines: drawing, painting, sculpture, pottery, and printmaking, but the idea of wearable art has always intrigued me.” That’s how Kinnari got started with her one-of-a-kind jewelry collection, which incorporates her love for wood work, painting, design, color, and composition.

Kinnari’s statement earrings incorporate different geometrical shapes, hammered metals, woods, and leather. She also hand paints some of her jewelry pieces, inspired by elements in the surrounding nature, and she loves to talk about her process.

Kinnari donates a portion of the proceeds from sales to fund eye surgeries for the underprivileged.

Lizzie's Bakery started as a passion project because Elizabeth ("Lizzie") Johnson was stuck in a job where she didn't feel creative. Lizzie would come home from work and study recipes on Pinterest. Lizzie baked her first cake in 2016 and was hooked. She took the leap to start Lizzie's Bakery after getting laid off from her day job, and today, she's still doing what she loves: baking cakes, working for herself, and chasing two cute toddlers.

In 2020, Lizzie competed on her first Food Network Baking competition show, "Girl Scout Cookie Championship". In 2021, Lizzie's Bakery won "Best of Boston - Wedding Cakes" by Boston Magazine and won Best of Boston 2023. More important than any accolade, Lizzie is inspired most by her kids. Lizzie also teaches cake classes, where she loves meeting new people and bringing joy to their lives while celebrating any opportunity to eat cake!

Alyssa Russo, the creative mind behind Wylo, started making jewelry in 2010 as a way to stay creative while working her day job. After several years of working in the corporate jewelry world, she launched her own brand, selling sterling silver and gold filled jewelry at local outdoor markets and events for almost four years.

In 2020, Alyssa made the leap to open a shop in the South End. In addition to selling her own jewelry collection, she started curating a collection of small batch and women-owned brands. just three years later, Wylo carries cards, pottery, tote bags and more from more than 50 women-owned brands. "It's an incredibly rewarding job," she says. "I get to give back to so many small businesses and watch them grow and flourish. We have become this community that is constantly rooting each other on, and it's surreal that I get to call this "work."

When dual cancer diagnoses landed both Lisamarie Pearson and her grandmother back home with Lisamarie’s mother for care, she returned to sewing – which her grandmother had taught her as a child – as stress-relieving hobby during treatments. Eventually, she began making toys to sell at a local craft fair. Today, Lisamarie is cancer-free, living a healthy lifestyle, and loving her second chance at life to spread happiness with her work to children and adults around the world.

Scatterbrain toys are designed to provide sensory therapy through texture, color, weight, and heat. Lisamarie’s popular “Octopals” come to life via octopus-like stuffed animals, illustrated enameled pins, stationary, stickers and more, all handmade by Lisamarie. “I will continue to design and develop new toys and ideas that will foster creative play with a nod of sensory needs to keep the snuggle game strong for years to come,” she promises.

“My husband Adam and I started making candles for fun in March 2020. Within 2 months, it turned into a formidable business,” says Christopher, co-founder of Sniffs of Adventures. “We base our candles on our travels and try to match the adventure with the smell that evoked the memories of that trip.” The duo sold their first candles online, then off of a table in their driveway at their home in Provincetown during the summer and fall of 2020. One year later, they landed in a shop of their own on Commercial Street in Provincetown.

Since then, Chris and Adam have created about 65 different scents, including “Apple Picking,” “A Parisian Affair,” and “Alpine Slide,” along with zodiac-inspired signs and seasonal scents. Chris and Adam have added candle making classes and “Sip ‘N Sniff” experiences at their stores and continue to create more unique scents and special collections. With an average price of $23 per candle, you can own a candle for every season and mood.
